BIOGRAPHICAL/HISTORICAL NOTE

John W. King, a medical doctor of Covington, Kentucky, was married to Ann Ruffin Barrow Benoit (sister of Martha Barrow Turnbull) of West Feliciana Parish, Louisiana and was the stepfather of Rosina E. Benoit. He was president of the Newport Manufacturing Company in Newport, Kentucky.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Some correspondence and legal documents deal with a lawsuit brought by Myra Clark Gaines challenging title to land King sold to William C. C. Martin of Bayou Boeuf, Rapides Parish, Louisiana. There are receipts for: poll, land, and slave taxes; payment of laborers; legal fees; horses; and street paving in Cincinnati, Ohio. Additional legal documents include a contract with N. M. Hentz to tutor King's stepdaughter, Rosina Benoit; a fire insurance policy; a broadside concerning creditors (John King) of the Republic of Texas; and King's will. Newspaper clippings focus on the Supreme Court decision (1837) in the case of Brisco v. Bank of the Commonwealth of Kentucky and other national banking issues. The printed pamphlet, written by John W. King, is entitled "Memorial to the state legislatures of the United States." Manuscript writings, presumably by King, are variously titled "Letters from the dead," "Confessions of faith," and "Preface." A medical notebook (1844-1850) containing King's extensive notes on diseases and disorders is also present.
